

ELLIS COLLECTION

The Ellis Collection is defined by beautiful flowing continuous lines. The pieces are geometric, yet also soft and inviting. Visually complex objects with sensual tactile appeal. They are supported on uncomplicated tubular steel frames, with characteristically large bend radii and diverging rails. Compact yet comfortable, the seating elements are further enhanced by the precise tailored details of their covers. Designed to complement the seating as a side table and coffee table. Lilla and Emily also look highly effective in groupings, where they can be overlapped allowing an interplay between their forms.

Finishes

All frames are produced in finished stainless steel, with the option of black or white powder coated mild steel frames for the tables. The Ellis Collection can be upholstered in a wide range of contract fabrics or leather, but for the Emma stool a degree of stretch is required.

Environment

The Ellis Collection is designed and manufactured to meet Australian and International environmental certification.

Design: Keith Melbourne

Training and working as an engineer in the international aerospace and automotive industries for many years, before retraining in design, has clearly influenced Keith Melbourne's approach to design. His acclaimed furniture and lighting designs have been described as sitting in a realm where art meets engineering.
